5. The faculty members of the program under survey may encourage the faculty members to engage in the development and production of more instructional materials like modules, workbooks, manuals and the like. These materials may be subjected for evaluation by the concerned office in the University and may also be copyrighted.	From the year 2020 to 2021, forty-two (42) faculty members of the Department of Psychology were engaged in the development of various Instructional Materials (IMs) for the use of students during and post-COVID-19 pandemic. The IMs were made pursuant to the Memorandum Order No. 30, Series of 2020 and were initially intended for use in flextel (mixed online and correspondence modes of learning) classes. However, even as we slowly begin to transition to onsite classes, said IMs are updated so that they may continue to be used. The Department's faculty have developed twenty-three (23) IMs for the use of tertiary students (i.e., 1 general course subject and 22 Psychology course specific subjects), as well as eight (8) IMs for senior high school students (i.e., 2 general strand subjects and 6 Humanities and Social Sciences Strand specific subjects). Said IMs were duly inspected and approved by the University's Quality Assurance Center. Likewise, various members of the faculty have also assisted in the assembly and dissemination of the IMs. Presently, the faculty are encouraged to develop their own materials and references for use in their specific loads. The Department also plans to continue developing materials such as workbooks, modules, and manuals for the different subjects under the Psychology course.	100%	List of Faculty with produced IMs:  LIST OF FACULTY with produced IMs - Google Drive Produced Instructional Materials:  INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS - Google Drive Photos during assembly of IMs:  IM Assembly - Google Drive
